OHIO.

Yes, we have heard the news from Ohio. The Democrats have carried the State by 30,000 majority. Instead of the Republic having fifteen Congressmen out of the twenty-one, the Democrats have fifteen and the Republicans six. Tuesday was a cold day for the Republicans of Ohio. They should not have suffered defeat. They have no bosses there. They have no "machine" there. They don't comprehend what bossism means in their own ranks, but they do understand now that it is too late, that a united party fighting for a purpose, although numerically weaker, is vastly superior to a lukewarm organization divided in opinion upon the questions at issue, as far as results go.

The victory in Ohio was won by the liquor men of that State. They were sold for the Democratic ticket. They worked for it, they spent their money for it, and they have reaped their reward. The Temperance men were listless. They were not enthusiastic in their labor for the cause. The Republican party in fighting the ruin interest, had a right to expect the hearty aid of Temperance men. But it did not get it. In the Western Reserve, Garfield's strong Republican district, the people would not rally to the support of the ticket. The Prohibitionists, also, with their usual tact, aided the enemy by supporting a separate ticket. The consequence is that the State of Ohio is placed under the control of the liquor interest.

But the decision of the Temperance issue only affects Ohio. There were other matters decided which have a great bearing upon the welfare of the whole nation. The Republican majority in the present House of Representatives is only seven. The Senate is a tie, with David Davis, of Illinois, holding the balance of power. The result of the Ohio election gives the Democrats fifteen Free Trade Congressmen instead of the five they have in the present Congress. Thus the local issues in Ohio is made to contribute largely towards the defeat of the Republican party of the nation. This loss must be made up elsewhere. If not, the Free Trade policy of the Democratic party will spread its baneful influence over all the industries of the country.

The people of Pennsylvania will soon be called upon to express their views at the polls. Will they allow the Democratic party to capture this State, because Republicans are divided upon questions of office, and who should distribute them? It is a question for all thinking Republicans to calmly consider, and if they do so, they will not fail to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion of their duty on election day.

The Temperance Democrats of Indiana met in Indiana last week and adopted resolutions and issued an address to the people of the State on the attitude of the Democratic party toward the liquor questions. The resolutions say that the prohibitory amendment was non-partisan in its inception and character, and that the purpose to make it a partisan question is unwarranted and was thrust upon the Democracy by the Liquor League. The address urges all Democrats to fight the rebellion of the liquor interest against law and order by repudiating the Democratic party's candidates for office.

The Treasury Department at Washington accepts of the decision of the Circuit Court at San Francisco, that the Anti-Chinese law of Congress must harmonize with the Treaty with China, and hence cannot interfere with the landing in this country of Chinese merchants, travelers, students, and others not laborers. This softens our very harsh law, and makes it more in accordance with our institutions and civilization.

A special dispatch from Bellaire, Ohio, says: "J. T. Updegraff, the successful candidate for Congress from the XVIIth District, is reported to be dead. His home is remote from the telegraph, and the report cannot be verified, but it is known that he was very ill with Bright's disease."

The First West Virginia district has elected Goff (Republican) to Congress by 300 to 500 majority. The same counties in 1880 gave Hancock for President 1,464 majority.

Gov. Marshall estimates Stewart's vote at 100,000.

WHAT DID IT?

Edwin Cowh's, the editor of the Cleveland Leader has something to say regarding the success of the Democrats in Ohio. In a special to the Tribune he accounts for it as follows:

"The Republicans of Ohio have met the enemy led by John Barleycorn and King Gambrinus, and have been routed, 'horse, foot and dragons.' The cause of their defeat can be traced clearly to temperance question. When the Republican Legislature passed a law taxing bar-room keepers—which has since been declared unconstitutional—the law closing grog-shops on Sunday, the German element, about 20,000 in number, obeying orders from their leaders, resolved to punish the Republicans for their temerity by voting with the Democrats. Added to this was the stampede of Republican workmen on account of being worsted in strikes, particularly that of the Cleveland Rolling Mill. A director of the company, Mr. Everett, was nominated for Congress in the XXth District by the Republicans, and became the target of workmen. Hence this signal defeat in a strong Republican district.

"The impracticable Prohibitionists drew largely and entirely from the Republican ranks and aided greatly in helping the liquor-sellers and Germans in punishing the party. It is simply an illustration of how extremes meet. Then the other class of temperance men throughout the State were in a lethargic state, and made no effort, comparatively speaking, to appreciate what the Republicans had done for temperance, resulting in an army of stay-at-homes. To cap the climax the Democrats were aided by a most efficient corps of assistants consisting of 15,000 proprietors of liquor-shops and 5,000 bar-keepers, making a force of 20,000 men who electioneered and did all of the work in details and stood around the 1,900 polling-places peddling tickets in addition to other classes of workers. They assessed themselves and contributed, with what the brewers gave, nearly $100,000 to the State Central Committee to be used as a corrupt on fund.

All these causes have resulted in the Republicans losing the State. They had a similar experience in 1874—the year the ladies were engaged in the temperance crusade movement, but they recovered the following year when they elected Hayes Governor. It is quite clear that Ohio with its foreign element and whiskey-drinking Democrats, with its two great parties evenly matched, cannot successfully follow the examples of Kansas and Iowa, which have generally gone Republican by from 50,000 to 80,000 majority. In these States the Republicans out number the Democrats three to one, hence the temperance character of their people."

ARE THEY SINCERE?

EDITOR GAZETTE.—The Republican bolters in our neighborhood, and we suppose they are but types of those elsewhere in this State, are composed of two distinct classes or sets of men. The origination of the movement came from the class or set who are popularly denominated "sore heads"—disappointed in their aspiration for place, and, therefore mad at the party, and not its leaders, the other class or set, are men who have persistently and always refrained from or neglected their political duty in the party for years, and because matters are not run to suit them, or they fancy they are not, (for they simply get their cue from the first mentioned class) are determined to do what they can to put the common enemy into power by disrupting and dividing the Republican party. There are a few hot-headed young men also with them, who have no opinions, and are influenced by private considerations solely. The purpose of all these men is to aid and abet the success of the Democratic party in this State primarily, and ultimately in the nation. They are not all fools, and know what they are about. They calmly, coolly, deliberately work with the determined purpose in view of defeating the Republican party. They may dress their words in any phrases that suit them, their purpose has but this one object. The claim set up by them is one of a higher moral and political atmosphere, and to do this they adopt as the battle cry, "Down with Cameron and the machine." Now, we submit that there is not one amongst them who does not know that, if they succeed at the approaching election in effecting their purpose of defeating the Republican candidates, that "Cameron and the machine" will not go down, and nothing will avail that end short of the expiration of Mr. Cameron's term of office, two years hence. We know there are many innocent politicians among this new anti-Republican party, but, as we have remarked, they are not fools, and affect to know what they are about. And as they cannot by any possible means accomplish their purpose at this election, we submit that they are not sincere in their position, and must take all the odium that the people and history will heap upon men who fight simply to destroy.

CHEDS.

The following extract from a circular issued by the Saloon-keepers' Association of Sandusky, Ohio, exposes one of the means by which the Republican party was defeated in that State Tuesday: "We are about 190 saloon-keepers. If each one turns only one Republican vote for us, that is, with our vote, already 380 in our favor, and a considerable gain. Each one has a friend whom he can gain for us. In our own interest and for the preservation of our freedom and personal rights it is necessary that we work together and cut off the thread of life of the Republican party, with their mucker temperance Radicals."

The number of miles of new railroads completed in this country last August was the greatest on record for a single month, being 1276 miles. The total reported mileage for the year up to October 1 was 7104 miles, and the indications are that by the close of the year over 10,000 miles will be altogether completed. Thus our great Republic progresses.

AN OPEN LETTER.

BRISTOL, PA., Oct. 9, 1882.
To Messrs. John K. Wideman, Isaac Leins, Joshua Peters, Burnett Lawdred, Anthony Sartin, and "others."—GENTLEMEN.—You have felt called upon to retire from the Republican party and to organize in this community, in union with similar efforts throughout this State, an organization called the Independent Republican party.

As citizens I do not propose to deny your right to do this, but as Republicans your efforts are questionable and open to public criticism.

I am thankful for one thing this far in my life's journey—I have been a consistent, firm and unyielding Republican—made so from my unalloyed faith in the principles underlying that organization. I accord to you, in the main, the same faith. I hope not to misjudge the honesty of your intentions. There has not been one idea advanced in this movement (save the view in favor of creating a civil service for life class), that I do not most heartily respond to.

Personalism, when dictatorial or subservient, official favoritism, when carried so far as to place in office incompetency in preference to the worthy; corruption and fraud, when brought to notice to be condoned and allowed to retain an influence in political life—in fact, all the evils you complain of, which, undoubtedly, if not our direct creation, we acquiesced in, I deprecate as fully as it is possible for you to do.

But when you refer to bossism as synonymous to leadership, I make bold to endorse it—for without leaders in thought, without workers to crystallize, we should not only stand still, but retrograde.

I was opposed to the Great Infinitesimal Independent—and you are well aware of the result of her advanced ideas, and how we have suffered from her not sticking to certain correct principles, and working within party lines, and until that apple be returned, and I can see swimming around me in the air, John and Joshua, and Isaac and Burnett, and Anthony and "others" with little wings, I shall feel constrained to doubt your sincerity.

Human nature will continue imperfect, and I can only see the difference between you and those complained of in opportunity, condition and degree.

If any two of your organization should be favored by being called to assume the positions as Senators at Washington from this great State, and it would become necessary, as it is the privilege and really the duty for the President to do, to consult some one, as his best judgment should dictate, as regards the official appointments in this State, I venture to assert the other undoubtedly and very naturally would be controlled in his views and action by ever binding jealousy.

I have in my mind's eye some of you, with whom I have a more than ordinary intimacy, occupying the position of favorite Senator. My judgment leads me to only one conclusion—the bossism of today would only be the shadow to the substance, or the play things would be broken up. Therefore, I feel we are too apt to condemn in others that which we fail to or cannot correct with ourselves.

This policy of yours in establishing a party independent and outside of the Republican party, is reprehensible for many reasons.

You have no principles other than those of the organization you have turned your back upon.

The inception of your entire movement was controlled by an unsatisfied ambition to be on top within the party, from malice and revenge.

The "eighty per cent. of respectability, wealth and intelligence" of your following are endeavoring to correct methods (no doubt honestly so) which their own shortcomings, their absolute disregard of duty as citizens, and their lukewarmness in political life have permitted to exist. You and we are responsible for the evils we endure.

And for you to step outside and away from this organization, and by your efforts jeopardize its supremacy, is too awful to contemplate, too sorrowful to refer to, too demoralizing to recognize.

Do you pretend to maintain that if you were to use the same zeal and energy, and throw as much of your personality into this cause inside of the party lines, that you could not modify and finally eradicate these objections?

Do you wish it to be understood that with the same efforts all over this State that you are now making, the only result of which you can look for will be to subordinate us to principles we all abhor, were directed inside of the party, that Senators and Representatives could not be sent to Harrisburg who would reflect public opinion, and not disregard it? If you do, I can only say I lose faith in the judgment of men I have always esteemed worthy of my best thoughts. Some call this a revolution. Revolutions are respected when they succeed. Our minds flash back to the movements leading up to 1860 for a counterpart.

REPUBLICAN SUPREMACY.

The Republican party has controlled Pennsylvania for twenty years. In that time the State has marched forward to the very pinnacle of material prosperity. Every interest, of value to the state, has been forwarded and enhanced by and through the protective policy of the Republican party. Another political contest is upon us, and the Democratic party is again flooding the State with promises and professions which would certainly be entertaining, had they not been so often repeated and so frequently broken. The people are again brought face to face with the question, whether they are tired of a party that has secured Pennsylvania's greatness, or whether they seek the uncertainties which lie in a future of Democratic control.

Taking the Republican and Democratic tickets by themselves, there is not a Republican in the State that would hesitate between them. Nothing in the Democratic canvass would make any Republican less apprehensive of Democratic success than in the score of previous battles. Nothing in the character of the Republican ticket would make any Republican doubtful or hesitating. Democracy is as dangerous and as untrustworthy as ever. Republicanism in its purity and integrity has as strong claims to the confidence and support of its followers. In the plain issue, therefore, between the Republican and Democratic tickets, no Republican would falter. Whatever uncertainty shadows the canvass comes, not from any objection to the Republican candidates, but from the popular resentment at the repeated abuses of party management.

This deep-seated repugnance to a despotic and oppressive personal rule is natural and just. It is the inevitable fruit of a long course of personal usurpation. But why should Republicans who are bent upon liberating the party from this thralldom go gunning in the wrong season? Why should they aim their shafts at the wrong target? Why should they scatter and waste the fire that ought to be concentrated upon the direct object of assault?

To overthrow the "machine" is, perhaps, a great desideratum. But it is not necessary to overthrow Republicanism in order to accomplish this result. If reform be a necessity, the Republican party is sufficiently intelligent to secure this result within itself. No outside help is required. The offer of the Democrats to reform Republicanism by taking the offices themselves, would be exceedingly amusing were it not so impudent. But it does not require that the Republican party shall be defeated or that the State shall be handed over to the Democratic managers. For twenty-five years the long line of Republican Governors in Pennsylvania has remained unbroken. For a quarter of a century the Republican party has not been beaten in this State in any general battle. It would be a matter of lasting regret if this honorable record were broken now—and all the more because it is not needed to accomplish the object which all true Republicans have at heart.—Norristown Times.

Mr. George William Curtis is the sort of Republican who never can agree with his neighbors, and who is generally in favor of Democratic success at a distance and Democratic failure at home. When his paper came out for Judge Folger every reader felt certain that there must be a mistake somewhere, and the truth has been apparent. Mr. Curtis makes haste to tell his readers in an open letter that he was away from home, and that an assistant who was called upon to dash off a hasty article while the press was waiting, fell into the not inexcusable mistake of supposing that he was writing for a Republican paper. Mr. Curtis claims to be more virtuous than the average of men, but he labors constantly for the success of the Democratic machine in New York State, which even Democrats are willing to concede contains about as much downright rascality to the square inch as any political organization ever formed in a civilized country. Mr. Curtis and the successors of the old Tweed ring, working in harmony to defeat a man of the irreproachable character of Judge Folger, form an edifying spectacle.—Norristown Herald.

The magnificent Yellowstone Park is in danger of being rapidly destroyed and its natural beauties defaced by wantonness and vandalism, unless the Government steps in to protect it. It is said that the first thing the Englishman does after registering at the Brevoort House is to start for the Yellowstone Park and needlessly shoot down scores of its large game—deer, buffaloes, bears, antelope and mountain sheep. Nor are foreigners always the chief sinners in this respect. Many of the most famous Yellowstone geysers have already ruined by people who amuse themselves by hurling immense trunks of pine trees into them in order to see the water force them high in the air. In many cases these logs have stuck in the water apertures, and have completely stopped the spouting. In Wyoming the people are taking steps to put a stop to such vandalism, and the wholesale slaughter of buffaloes and other game by English tourists.

Wendell Phillips leads a quiet, retired life in his new house on Common street, Boston, where he has succeeded in making his immediate surroundings resemble very closely those of the old Essex street home. He has declined all lecture engagements, and will probably be seldom seen or heard in public this winter.
